CO-OPERATION

By ELBERT HUBBARD.

It is an enterprise that amounts to anything all transactions should be in the name of the firm, because the firm is more than any person connected with it. Clerks or salesmen who have private letterheads and ask customers to send letters to them personally are on the wrong track. To lose your identity in the business is one of the penalties of working for a great institution. Don't protest—it is no new thing—all big concerns are confronted by the same situation. Get in line; it is a necessity.

If you want to do business individually and in your own name, stay in the country or do business for yourself. Peanut stands are individualistic; when the peanut man goes the stand also cranks. Successful corporations are something else.

Of course, the excuse is, if you send me the order direct, I know you and your needs, can take much better care of your wants than that disputed and intangible thing, "the house." Besides, sending it through the circulation office takes time.

There is something more to say. First, long experience has shown that "the saving of time" is exceedingly problematical. For, while in some instances a rush order can be got off the same night by sending it to an individual, yet when your individual has gone fishing is at the ball game, or is sick, or else has given up his job and gone with the opposition house, there are great vexatious delays, dire confusions and a great strain on vocabularies.

This thing of a salesman carrying his trade with him and considering the customers of the house his personal property is the thought of only two men. A house must have a certain fixed policy—a reputation for square dealing—otherwise it could not exist at all. It could not even give steady work and good pay to the men who think it would be only a hole in the ground without them.

In the main, the policy of the house is right. Don't acquire the habit of butting in with your stub end of a will in opposition to the general policy of the house. To help yourself, get in line with your house, stand by it, take pride in it, respect it, uphold it and regard its interests as yours. The men who do this become the only men who are really necessary. There are the topnotchers, the hundred-pointers.

The worst about the other plan is that it ruins the man who undertakes it. For a little while to do a business of your own in the shadow of the big one is beautiful—presents come, personal letters, invitations, favors, "Mr. Johnson in?" By and by Johnson gets cheery; he respects it when other salesmen wait on his customers or look after his mail. He begins to plot for personal gain, and the first thing you know he is a plain grafter, at loggerheads with his colleagues, with the interests of the house secondary to his own.

We must grow toward the house, and with it, not away from it. Any policy which lays an employee open to temptation or tends to turn his head, causing him to lose sight of his own best interests, seeking at a small present betterment and losing the great advantage of a life's business is bad. The open cash drawer, valuable goods lying around not recorded or inventoried, free and easy responsibility, good enough plans and let'er go policies all tend to ruin men just as surely as do cigars, booze, pasteborders and the races.

The man who thinks he owes "his trade" and threatens to walk out and take other employees and customers with him is slated to have his dream come true. The manager gives in; the individual is then sure he is right; the enlarged ego grows, and some day the house simply takes his word for it and out he goes. The down-and-outter heads off his mail at the post-office, and the result is a month or two smooths things out and he is forgotten absolutely. The steamship blows a "cht along."

Just get a new job, only to do it all over again if he can. This kind of a man seldom learns.

When he gets a job he soon begins to correspond with rival firms for a better one, with intent to take his "good will" along. The blame should go back to the first firm where he was employed, that allowed him a private letterhead and let him get filled with the fallacy that he was doing business on his own account, thus losing sight of the great truth that we win through cooperation and not through segregation or separation. The firm's interests are yours; if you think otherwise, you are already on the slide.

MONTENEGRINS READY FOR WAR

A Mass Meeting Protests Against Atrocities Committed by Turks.

Cetinje, Montenegro, Aug. 21.—A mass meeting of Montenegrins, here, protested against alleged atrocities committed by Turks in the Albanian district of Berana, on the Montenegrin frontier, where a large number of Christians have been massacred. A resolution was passed calling on the Montenegrin government to declare war against Turkey.

The war fever is rapidly growing in intensity throughout the whole country.

Rumors of Changes Denied.

Constantinople, Aug. 21.—A telegram received here today from Ukip states that an agreement has been reached between the representative of the Turkish government and the Albanian insurgents, who were marching toward Saloniki in considerable force. The Albanians are said to have begun to return to their homes.

Rumors of further changes in the Turkish cabinet are declared, in official circles, to be entirely unfounded.

DETECTIVE SAYS ALDERMAN RETURNED MONEY WHEN CAUGHT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21.—The testimony of W. J. Broderick, a private detective, was the feature of the police court examination of "Honest Tom Gliman," the first of the 18 aldermen recently arrested on bribery charges, to be tried in court.

Brennan went into the details of the trapping of the aldermen up to the time he alleges that he, representing himself to be an official of the Wabash railroad, paid Gliman $1000 for his influence in granting the railroad's request for the use of a street for building purposes. The witness testified that Gliman, when he realized his plight, handed back the money and made a confession.

POLICE THREAT MURDER VICTIM WAS "FENCE" FOR BURGLARS

Brighton, Colo., Aug. 21.—That John Zabransky, the reclusive, murdered in the back room of his dingy little jewelry shop on Main street, was a "fence" for the Denver police department, leave no doubt in the minds of the officers that the country cornerer decided, waiving aside a murder theory.

Bullard was found lying on a road near Newhall, with the needle in his brain, and a posse spent several days searching for his supposed assailant.

CORONER RETURNS VERDICT OF SUICIDE HEAD OF MURDER

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 21.—Calvin H. Bullard, formerly a postoffice inspector, who died in the county hospital committed suicide by thrusting a sack needle three inches into his head. Thus the county coroner decided, waiving aside a murder theory.

GRANDSIRE RESORT HOTEL PLANNED FOR EL PASOANS AT WEST YULETA

West Yuleta is to have a mission resort to cost $250,000, the promoters say. Plans are being drawn by Gibson and Robertson for the hotel, which is to be built in the New West Yuleta townsite, four blocks from the county road, 11 miles from El Paso, on the new interurban line. The hotel will be built by the Townsite company, it is stated. The company is composed of Frank E. Toole, Winchester Cooley, Lamar Davis and others. It will be leased to K. L. Hatfield, of the Mexican Southern railroad, as soon as it is completed.

It will be in no sense a roadhouse. The builders say, and it is intended to operate as a "club," as high as the Country club or Toilett club. The building will be of adobe construction with a rough stucco finish and metal roof.

MEXICANS AND AMERICANS FIGHT

Three Mexicans Shot, One Fatally, in Gleason Pistol Battle.

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 21. Following the declaration that it was no harm to kill an American and threats of what they would do to Americans in general, three Mexicans were shot, one possibly fatally, in a pistol duel in the main street of Gleason, word of the affray being received here by Harry Wheeler. Two of the wounded Mexicans and an American, Bill Evans, and R. Cox, an American youth, were held for preliminary hearings. It is said Evans, Cox and five Mexicans were in a saloon drinking after a dance. The Mexicans, as they became intoxicated, are said to have grown more and more insulting to the American boys. Finally amid shouts of "Vive Mexico," they declared that it was no harm to shoot Americans. Young Cox was unarmed, as was Evans. He is said to have told Evans that he was afraid to go home, as the Mexicans had threatened to kill him. Evans replied that he would go home and get his gun and accompany him (Cox). This he did. The two youths started out of the saloon, the Mexicans following, and Evans warning them away. On arriving in the middle of the street, Evans is said to have warned the Mexicans to stand aside and let them pass. This warning was disregarded, the Mexicans pressing forward. They fired about 20 shots. Cox had five shots in the arm, all of which, it is said, he fired. When the smoke had cleared neither of the Americans had been hit, two Mexicans lay on the ground, one shot through the left shoulder near the heart, another with a bullet through his right thigh. Another Mexican shot in the left leg limped away and managed to escape.

Two six mule freight teams used by L. E. Carr in transporting freight, he, Campbell and El Tigre were overtaken by a flood of water in the box canyon this side of the river crossing. According to the story, the six mules of one team were drowned before they could be rescued from the narrow canyon. The other outfit succeeded in escaping.

WISHES TO MOVE PUMP FACTORY HERE

El Campo, Tex., Man Makes Proposition to Chamber of Commerce.

The El Campo Machine company is desirous of moving its factory to the manufacture of irrigation pumps to El Paso and before a meeting of the manufacturing committee of the chamber of commerce Tuesday afternoon, P. J. Hardy, representing the company, put up a proposition to the El Paso business men to purchase the factory building at the city of El Paso furnish a building site for the factory situated on the corner of the local railroad, no special one being named by Mr. Hardy. If not this, the company is willing to establish the factory here if El Paso can take a half interest in the enterprise, or a controlling interest. Mr. Hardy says he is desirous of establishing a factory here and if this cannot be done, to have some one make the pumps here and obtain a sale for them in this section.

The pump itself is said to be stronger than the usual irrigation pump of the same power required, and will pump at a depth of 95 feet, and some of the pumps have averaged as high as 5,000 gallons per day from wells.

Already there has been an outlay of $10,000 in the factory where it is located at El Campo, Texas, but El Paso is believed to be a better location for the enterprise.

Crawford Harvey, chairman of the manufacturing committee, will have a demonstration of the pump made and the matter of establishing the factory in El Paso will not be decided until later.

LITTLE BOBBIE'S PA

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

THE first time in my life since I have been born I didn't know yesterday where Pa had been the night before. I found out at last because I asked him to tell me, but he didn't like to tell me because he had told me that he had been to the Traffic Policemen. Think of them noobal heroes, sed Pa to Ma. Surely you don't begrudge me a day in there society. I am surprised, sed Pa. Think of you looking because I wanted to be the guest of three fine officers like Dan Shine & Bill Bannan & Sergeant Crane, sed Pa. It is men like them that keep you from getting run over when you are crossing the teeming streets of Manhattan, sed Pa. They don't have to keep Mr. Ma from getting run over, sed Ma, but I can easily appreciate your feeling of being the teeming streets of Manhattan, sed Ma. Well, anyway, sed Pa, these fine boys are all friends of mine, & in view of the fact that they wanted me to go out to there outing I couldn't see my way clear to refuse them. Besides, they had a baseball game & they needed a good pitcher, so I gave them my best of my vase experience. Pa, I pitched the whole nine innings for Sergeant Crane's team, & won for them, hands down.

You don't tell me, sed Ma. Please, dearest, if you really want to go out with the traffic policemen, why is it that I was told by a certain tavern keeper that you had been in the afternoon about two o'clock in the afternoon & that you had went to the office from there?

What is that? sed Pa. I don't care to repeat it, sed Ma. Then I don't care to discuss it, sed Pa. I don't see all the time that Pa was stalling.

So after he had had his dinner & went out on the porch to smoke a cigar that had been gave to him, I followed Pa out & sed, See here, father, I want you to tell me the truth about where you have been.

What is that? sed Pa, a third degree? No, I sed, I am not going to be cruel to you, but I do want you to tell me the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

You don't want much, do you? sed Pa. If everybody told the truth, the whole truth & nothing but the truth, Mister Gayner wud have all the time in the world to loaf around St. James, Pa, sed.

But at last Pa told me the truth. He had met a old friend of his from Milwaukee & he had had a very good time with him, & after that they had went to see Johnnie McGraw.

What is that? sed Pa, a third degree? No, I sed, I am not going to be cruel to you, but I do want you to tell me the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

You don't want much, do you? sed Pa. If everybody told the truth, the whole truth & nothing but the truth, Mister Gayner wud have all the time in the world to loaf around St. James, Pa, sed.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL

August 21, 1785.
By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

THE death of Jonathan Trumbull, 127 years ago today—Aug. 21, 1785—our country lost one of the grandest of the men who, in the "times that tried men's souls," stood ever true to the cause of liberty.

Born in Lebanon, Connecticut, in 1758, he graduated at Harvard in 1779. Trumbull began life thoroughly equipped, physically, mentally and morally, for the winning of the things men call success.

The sterling manhood, great good sense and fearless industry of the young man were not unappreciated by his countrymen, and the honors came to him thick and fast. By turns and in rapid succession, Trumbull was made judge, deputy governor and governor of the state of Connecticut.

When the great struggle began Trumbull entered into it heart and soul, never deviating a hair's breadth from the straight line of patriotic devotion. The British tried to buy him, but he was not to be bought. He was not gold enough in England's strong boxes to have bought him. They tried to frighten him, but he was proof against the loudest thunders of their wrath. He was neither to be scared nor bribed into infidelity to the cause that he loved with an individual affection.

There are men of thought and men of action. Trumbull belonged in the first category. He was a man of thought. His common sense was unerring. His judgment was ever true.

It is a matter of common knowledge that Washington always placed the greatest reliance in the Connecticut man. He called him the "first of patriots," and his confidence in his judgment was equal to his admiration for his patriotism.

As often as the "Father of His Country" was in doubt about the admissibility of a thing he would, if possible,
